STUDY-PLAN GRID | ACADEMICS | ALL STUDENTS

Exam study-plan grid

Put every exam on one page, split the topics, and give each one real hours in your week.

HOW TO USE IT

1. List each exam with its date, from your school's official exam schedule.
2. Write the topics left and the hours you'll give it.
3. Block those hours in the week grid. Tick once the session is in your calendar.

1 Exam 1

Course: _____ Exam date and room: _____

Topics left: _____ Hours: _____ ☐ Booked

2 Exam 2

Course: _____ Exam date and room: _____

Topics left: _____ Hours: _____ ☐ Booked

3 Exam 3

Course: _____ Exam date and room: _____

Topics left: _____ Hours: _____ ☐ Booked

4 Exam 4

Course: _____ Exam date and room: _____

Topics left: _____ Hours: _____ ☐ Booked

5 Exam 5

Course: _____ Exam date and room: _____

Topics left: _____ Hours: _____ ☐ Booked

6 Exam 6

Course: _____ Exam date and room: _____

Topics left: _____ Hours: _____ ☐ Booked

7 Exam 7

Course: _____ Exam date and room: _____

Topics left: _____ Hours: _____ ☐ Booked

WEEK GRID

Monday	Tuesday
Wednesday	Thursday
Friday	Saturday
Sunday	Next week

Write the exam number and hours in each box, like "3: 2 h". Leave one block free each day for catch-up and rest.

Questions to ask in office hours

TRY THIS

Start with the exam that is soonest and the one you find hardest. Give those two the most hours.

CHECK

Exam dates and rooms change. Recheck the official schedule a week before, and again the day before.

WHAT THIS SHEET LEAVES OUT

Accommodations, deferred exams and missed-exam rules. Those are set by each school. Ask your instructor or accessibility office early.

WITH A PARTNER

Pick one exam you share. Each of you writes five practice questions, then swap and answer.

Sources: this sheet states no outside facts; it is a planning page. Checked 2026-11-28.