The official application checklist says you will need, among other items, your Social Insurance Number, an email address, mailing and permanent addresses, employment history if applicable, program name, program start and end dates, educational institution name and phone number, educational history if applicable, specific line amounts from your previous year's income tax return, and scholarships, bursaries and other education-targeted funding. Permanent residents and protected persons are asked for status documents listed on that page. You may be asked for more documents to validate the application. https://www.gnb.ca/en/topic/education-training/post-secondary/student-aid/full-time-students.html (checked 2026-11-27)

The part-time application checklist asks for your Social Insurance Number, email, mailing and permanent addresses, the amount of any outstanding Part-Time Canada Student Loan, a copy of a previous study-period transcript if applicable, line 15000 from your previous year's income tax return (or an explanation if you had no income), and a copy of your previous-year CRA Proof of Income Statement. Married or common-law students are also asked for a partner's Social Insurance Number, date of birth, line 15000 and CRA proof of income. Permanent residents and protected persons are asked for the status documents listed on that page. https://www.gnb.ca/en/topic/education-training/post-secondary/student-aid/funding-part-time-students.html (checked 2026-11-27)

The NB Student Aid Portal page says the portal is where you apply for full-time student aid, upload supporting documents, and access electronic messages. To complete your student aid account you need a valid Social Insurance Number; accounts created without one will be deleted. Only one account can be created for each Social Insurance Number. If you have already registered but cannot sign in, the page says to call 1-800-667-5626. For questions about funding deposits or repayment, it points you to your NSLSC account or 1-888-815-4514.
