Repeat-course GPA impact worksheet

Work out how repeating a course would change your cumulative GPA under the rule your calendar actually uses: both attempts count, the new attempt replaces the old one, or the new attempt is Extra and ignored.

University of Toronto Faculty of Arts & Science (course enrolment calendar, checked 27 November 2026): if you re-enrol after a mark under 50% (or NCR or FL) and you have not already passed the course, each attempt appears on the record and the mark contributes to GPA unless that attempt is Credit/No Credit or Extra. A passed course may be repeated only once; the second attempt is Extra unless the Second Attempt for Credit policy applies (not for second attempts before September 2025). Under that policy, if the second mark is higher, the Extra designation can move to the first attempt for up to 2.0 credits, and the first attempt then drops out of GPA and degree-credit totals. Other schools use different rules. Copy yours.

CHECKS

- [ ] I copied the repeat rule from my own faculty calendar, not from a forum
- [ ] I know whether the first attempt is already in my cumulative GPA
- [ ] I used the same grade-point scale my school uses

SOURCES (CHECKED 2026-11-27)

The University of Toronto Faculty of Arts & Science course enrolment calendar says students may re-enrol in a course after a mark lower than 50% or a status of No Credit (NCR) or Failure (FL), if they have not already obtained credit for the course. Each attempt appears on the academic record and the mark contributes to grade point average calculations, unless an attempt has been declared Credit/No Credit or designated Extra. https://artsci.calendar.utoronto.ca/course-enrolment (checked 2026-11-27)
The same calendar says a previously passed course may be repeated only once. For degree students, the second attempt is marked Extra unless the Second Attempt for Credit policy applies. That policy does not apply to second attempts taken before September 2025. When it does apply and the second mark is higher, the Extra designation is added to the initial attempt for up to a maximum of 2.0 credits in chronological order, and the initial attempt is then not included in GPA calculations or the overall number of degree credits. https://artsci.calendar.utoronto.ca/course-enrolment (checked 2026-11-27)
